Customer Reviews

I bought these tabs to match my new purple bible, and they are very pretty with a soft swirly design in the background, the edge is purple foil and the font is nice with black lettering. I have another bible with more plain white tabs with a silver foil edge and after applying these new tabs and working with both bibles I have found I prefer the old set because the tabs themselves are not as tall, they are thinner in height and longer. They don't look so chunky and stout, that's the best way I can describe these new tabs. Since the other tabs are thinner they don't flop around as much and seem thicker even though I believe they are the same double card stock thickness. I also had some trouble getting some of these tabs off their backing paper. About 1/3 of the time instead of the tab peeling off the backing paper the backing paper would just peel in half. I was always able to peel from a different side or direction and get the tab off cleanly. I am glad I bought them because they are very pretty and complement my bible cover very well, just some things I wish I had known before I bought these. I may have looked harder or settled for more functional tabs.

HELPFUL HINTS* Really make sure you only have one page, verify using the page numbers. Although you can reposition the tabs easily before you push them into place it is very difficult to peel them back off the thin bible paper once you have pushed them down on both sides. What is good for permanence is bad for mistakes.* If you want to mark the old & new testaments with their own tabs (or any of the front sections) plan that accordingly because if you label all the books in order you can't go back and add them later and have the perfect "waterfall" positioning.
