Customer Reviews

This is the BEST financial literacy book for kids! It covers the basics extremely well and gives hints of questions to ask the child for his/her feedback. I bought an assortment of financial education books for my grandchildren and this, by far, was the best of them all.

Not a spectacular book but the only one I could find on wants and needs. I suggest skipping the pages when the dad denies Lily's request to go bowling and play mini golf because the park is free. Silly to indicate families should only go on free outings.I also recommend:GradesK-2Wants vs. Needs series, Linda StanifordJust Saving My Money, Mercer MayerJust a Piggy Bank, Gina MayerK-3Stan and Jan Berenstain- The Berenstain Bearsâ™ Trouble with Money, â | Get the GimmiesAlexander, Who Used To Be Rich Last Sunday, Judith ViorstMoney Doesn't Grow on

Trees, Jennifer Moore-Mallinos1-5Rock, Brock, and the Savings Shock, Sheila Bair2-5A Smart Girlsâ™ Guide to Money, Nancy Holyoke

This is a great book to support a unit for a Kindergarten/Grade 1 Social Studies unit on 'Needs and Wants'. The text level is a little more difficult than Needs and Wants by Gilla Olson or Wants Versus Needs - A Place to live by Linda Staniford, but the pictures are very engaging and encourage classroom discussion. I would suggest reading this book after reading the other two books previously mentioned.

Great book for children to learn the difference! My 5-year-old niece lost interest... and I read with inflection. It's hard to keep them interested in things that matter...

My 6 year old granddaughter adores this colorful and educational book. Its a favorite at bedtime.
