This picture book gives a new twist to an old bible truth. Most kids are taught the story of noah's ark in Sunday School. This book picks up where the bible leaves off! The animals on the ark are getting grumpy and Noah's comes up with a plan to stop the cabin fever!

Gorgeous, vibrant pictures and roll-off-the-tongue rhyme, this book is a hit with my 1 and 2 year olds. Join the animals aboard Noah's Ark as they strike a bit of cabin fever on board and decide to hold a talent show! Engaging storyline for preschoolers and pictures they will enjoy poring over and pointing out animals with you.

Life on Noah's Ark is busy and noisy - and close quarters are getting everybody grumpy. So Noah decides to invite warring factions to a creature cabaret to get the Ark in fun mode - but what animal act will form the grand finale? A rollicking rhyme exposes 'animal tantrums and insect miffs' alike while a fun story line offers up an unexpected conclusion perfect for picturebook collections seeking something different.

I really enjoyed reading this book with my son. He memorized it, I memorized. We read it every night for months. I'm disappointed he doesn't want me to read it as much anymore. lol. It really is a great book and got me interested in the author's other books.

Tony Mitton took a child through many animal encounters that weren't too far of a stretch on the imagination, with my children's favorite keeping their watchful eye on the growing caterpillars. The appeal of this story is all of the activity on board, and the book's illustrations also provide a playfulness that shows how God's handiwork could mean a month's plus of unique animal behavior. Guy Parker-Rees also pulls in vivid color and every page is filled with movement. Beautifully done!
